

Executive Biography

Thom Breckenridge
Managing Director
Boeing Defence UK

Thom Breckenridge is managing director of Boeing Defence UK (BDUK). In this role, Thom oversees the execution and growth of Boeing’s significant defence programmes in the United Kingdom. BDUK is Boeing’s onshore defence business and trusted partner to the Ministry of Defence, operating in the UK at 18 key sites with a highly skilled workforce of 2,100 people.

Most recently Thom was managing director Boeing Defence Northeast & Southeast Asia in Boeing Global Services’ Government Services group, where he was responsible for leading Boeing’s defense services business throughout the region.

Thom has two decades of global experience at Boeing, working in the United States, India, the Middle East, East Asia and Europe, where he led growth strategies and international sales, including platforms such as F/A-18, F-15, and T-7.

Thom graduated with honors from Pepperdine University with bachelor’s degrees in international business and French; he holds a specialized diploma in French from the Université Lumière Lyon II, and is an alumnus of Harvard Business School through its Senior Executive Leadership Program. Thom will relocate to Bristol with his wife and two children.
