

THOM BRECKENRIDGE
Managing Director
Boeing Defence UK

Thom Breckenridge is managing director and chairman of the board of Boeing Defence UK (BDUK). Thom oversees the execution and growth of Boeing's significant defence programmes in the United Kingdom. BDUK is Boeing's onshore defence business and trusted partner to the Ministry of Defence, operating in the UK at 18 key sites with a highly skilled workforce of 2,100 people.

Most recently Thom was managing director, Northeast & Southeast Asia in Boeing Global Services' Government Services group, where he was responsible for leading Boeing's defence services business throughout the region. Based in Tokyo, Breckenridge also led the stand-up of Boeing Japan Kabushiki Kaisha, Boeing's subsidiary delivering government services to Japan's Ministry of Defence.

Thom has two decades of global experience at Boeing, working in the United States, India, the Middle East, Asia and Europe. He has held various roles in program management, business development, strategic partnerships and finance across Boeing's defence business and in corporate functions.

Thom graduated with honors from Pepperdine University with bachelor's degrees in international business and French; he holds a specialized diploma in French from the Université Lumière Lyon II, and is an alumnus of Harvard Business School through its Senior Executive Leadership Program. Thom lives in Bristol with his wife and two children.
